Opposition for Hoover
Mr. Rockefeller's Plan
Pope Pius' Warning
How Do We Know Ourselves

—BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

LATEST political news, not guaranteed, is that Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, backed by "Progressive Republicans," will try to take the nomination from Mr. Hoover in 1932. This is the first opposition to Mr. Hoover's nomination suggested thus far.

Taking the nomination from Mr. Hoover would not be easy, and if any taking were to be done, Senators Norris, Borah and La Follette might want to be considered.

Also would-be nominees should not forget that there is a certain Calvin Collidge, sitting in the shadow keeping watch above his own. He wouldn't take anything away from President Hoover, but he might take it from somebody else. And how easily he could take it from somebody else!

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., serves his city by rebuilding and transforming an undeveloped section in the heart of New York at an expense of about $250,000,000.

This undertaking guarantees, over a long period, a very large and permanent income for Columbia college.

It shows what can be done, with imagination, energy and money, to improve a great city in a short time.

Most important, Mr. Rockeller's enterprise will give employment to thousands of men now out of work in the highly paid building trades.

And Mr. Rockefeller's magnificently planned development, including a fine opera nouse, buildings for exhibition of moving pictures and for broadcasting, will attract visitors from all over the United States and add to the prosperity of all business men in New York.

SOME NEW YORK editors, suddenly developing deep knowledge of architecture are very kind about telling Mr. Rockefeller what he should build. Some, it seems, would like him to tear down several blocks and create some sort of Petit Trianon in imitation of Marie Antoinette's playhouse at Versailles. Others, perhaps, would prefer a Fifth avenue Sans Souci.

Mr. Rockefeller, fortunately, is a business man, has a business father, and does not mean to build what would be known later as "Rockefeller's folly." He will build American way, up toward the sky.

POPE PIUS XI, in an earnest letter of rebuke, criticizes Fascist authorities, which means Mussolini and his government.

Pope Pius warns Fascism and Mussolini, plainly, that "in order to be Catholics, not in name, but in deed also, there is only one indispensable means—to obey the church and its head." The pope's letter criticizes a statement by Giurati, secretary of the Fascist party, who objects to the "Acione Cattolica," a church organization, which he calls hostile to Fascism.

The pope reminds the government that, "In the field of education, the church has full competence and authority," and that it is the duty of the government to be guided by the church, and to assist her.

Mussolini's only reply, thus far, is the arrest of newsboys selling the newspaper Osservatore Romano and calling out the pope's letter of censure. There was no interference with newsboys selling the

Aid Rushed To Battle Texas Oil Fire

SPARK STARTS BLAZE FATAL TO SEVEN MEN

Roaring Caldron Snuffs Out Lives of Workmen; Other Deaths Possible.

BLAST PRECEDES FLAMES

Agonizing Scenes Recounted by Survivors of Gigantic Fire Geyser.

By The Associated Press

GLADWATER, Tex., April 29—Men and equipment were rushed to the Sinclair No. 1 Cole oil well, four miles southeast of here, today in an effort to subdue the mighty, roaring caldron that burned seven men to death last night.

Two other men pulled from the inferno after it had become ignited were near death in a Longview hospital. It was possible others had died in the blaze but operators were hopeful all had been accounted for.

The dead: Bob Murdock of Orlando, Okla.; Bill Haroun of Canadian, Okla.; George Albright of Carthage City, Pa.; Roy Blankenship of Tulsa, Okla.; Bill McCasland, Sr., of Winona, Okla.; Bill McCasland, Jr., of Winona, Okla.; Virgil Woltz of Hunter, Okla.

John Keys, 39, of Oklahoma City, and Frank Fiouck, 35, of Woodfield, Okla., were in the hospital at Longview in a dying condition.

Wide Area Illuminated

The gigantic geyser of fire crackled and leaped unabated, gathering momentum through the night, lighting the pine forests for many miles. Its heat became intensified as thousands of barrels of crude oil were lapped up by the shooting flames.

It appeared likely that several days would be necessary for experts to place nitro glycerine to blow out the fire.

While the oil fire snorted and popped, buddies of Murdock and Haroun, whose bodies were cremated in the withering caldron,

INQUIRY FORECAST

Rangers Investigating Alleged Communist Plot Will Probe Fire.

By The Associated Press

TYLER, Tex., April 29—Sinclair Oil company officials here said today that Texas rangers investigating an alleged Communist plot to blow up oil field properties were expected to inquire into the oil well explosion that killed seven men near Gladewater, Tex., last night.

Glenn Harroun, production superintendent for the company, said the fire which ignited the well as it was flowing wild was known to have started beneath the derrick floor, where, he said, there were no frictional parts that might have caused a spark.

WIDOW OF FORMER ENGLISH ENVOY DIES

Short Illness Fatal to Mrs. Whitelaw Reid in Southern France.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, April 29—Mrs. Whitelaw Reid of New York, widow of the former ambassador to England, died at 9:50 a. m. today at Cape Ferrat, at the home of her daughter, Lady Ward.

Mrs. Reid, who arrived in France only last week, contracted a chill during her voyage across the Atlantic. She was ill when she reached Paris and had grown steadily worse since.

On Saturday she went to Cape Ferrat in the belief that a visit to the south of France might improve her health.

Members of the family said that despite her illness during the brief stay in Paris she took time to inspect the new building of the Paris edition of the New York Herald-Tribune, seeming to be as mindful of its technical details as in those days years ago when she was helpmate to Whitelaw Reid, then a rising New York journalist.

Funeral arrangements have not been made pending word from her son, Ogden Reid in New York.

BOY STORM HERO IS HOOVER GUEST

Bryan Untiedt Arrives for Day and Night at White House.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 29—Bryan Untiedt, 13-year-old hero of the Colorado blizzard, arrived at the White House shortly after 9 a. m. today to spend a day and a night as guest of President and Mrs. Hoover.

The boy wore a blue suit and in his hand was a small camera. As he walked up the front portico of the executive mansion he was received with all the formality accorded all White House visitors. The great front door was swung wide by a uniformed butler and Bryan walked inside to have breakfast in the family dining room.

Bryan was escorted by a secret service man who had accompanied him from his home near Denver.

Bryan was the hero of a school bus tragedy in which five children perished and in which more probably would have lost their lives had he not exerted heroic efforts to keep them active and warm.

Bryan was left in charge of the bus by Carl Miller, the driver, when it became snowbound. Miller froze to death in an attempt to obtain help. When airplanes found the bus nearly two days later young Untiedt had removed his outer clothing to cover the younger children.

After being greeted by Mrs. Hoover, the boy was shown to the blue bedroom which in years past has housed many distinguished guests. A few minutes later the lad went to the White House executive offices to see the President.

BRYAN UNTIEDT

Entirely unabashed by the attention being shown him, Bryan sat in a big arm chair and talked with the President about his trip from Colorado.

COURTUALD IN FAR NORTH

Marooned Without Provisions. Is Report in Wireless Message.

By The Associated Press

MALMO, Sweden, April 29—Albin Ahrenberg, the Swedish aviator, took off at noon today on a flight to Greenland to search for Augustine Courtauld, the British scientist, who is lost there.

Ahrenberg set his course for Bergen, Norway, where he hoped to arrive this evening. With him were Wireless Operator Lund and Mechanic Malm. He planned to fly from Bergen to Reykjavik, Iceland, and thence to Angmagsalak, Greenland.

His plane, a Junkers F13 four-seater which had been used on the night air mail between Stockholm and Copenhagen, was especially equipped for the light with blind flying instruments and an illumination plant for landing in the dark. It also carried a set of landing skis for one of the expedition's disabled planes.

MESSAGE RECEIVED

"Absolutely Without Provisions," Says Word from Courtauld.

By The Associated Press

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 29—A wireless message received at Reykjavik, Iceland, today purporting to be from Augustine Courtauld, British scientist who is lost in northern Greenland, stated: "Absolutely without provisions."

An airplane leaving Iceland today with the Iceland inspection ship Odin, will fly from the edge of the ice barrier to Tasioak and to Angmagsalik, searching for Courtauld enroute. If the plane can find him it will drop provisions on the ice for his use.

He is believed to be somewhere in the vicinity of the station at which he was left to spend the winter and obtain meteorological data for use of the British Arctic air route expedition. The site of this station has not been located thus far by rescue parties which have gone to Courtauld's aid.

Gangsters Sought as Kidnaping Gang

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 29—Despite denials from the victim, members of his family, and his close friends, police today were working on a theory a substantial ransom was paid for the release yesterday of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, Jr., prominent physician.

Three gangsters, all former members of the notorious Cuckoo gang here, but now allegedly allied with the equally notorious Shelton gang in southern Illinois, were being sought in the case.

Police believed the gangsters, who disappeared from their customary haunts at about the time of the kidnaping, have definite knowledge of the abduction.

First Call Paid White House by Siamese Ruler

WASHINGTON, April 29—For the first time in history, an absolute monarch crossed the threshold of the White House today to receive a friendly handclasp of welcome by the President of the United States.

Accompanied by aides and his queen, King Prajadhipok of Siam called formally on President Hoover to receive the President's welcome to the United States. Mrs. Hoover welcomed the queen.

By long standing custom, the call was a highly formal one and was immediately returned by the President and Mrs. Hoover at the royal resident of the eastern ruling couple on Massachusetts avenue.

A considerable crowd gathered outside the Larz Anderson home, loaned for their residence during the official stay in Washington, to watch the coming and going of the cabinet, supreme court members and diplomatic corps, to whom the king had granted audience.

Allan Cauble, 18, in Hospital Awaiting Arraignment on Robbery Charge.

CORNERED BY POLICEMEN

Cleveland Fight Promoter Wounded by Stray Bullet During Battle.

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., April 29—Allan Ernest Cauble, 18, who yesterday said he was Glenn Funk, 20, was under heavy guard in a Mansfield hospital today awaiting arraignment on charges of robbery of Ray King, 20, of Zanesville, operator of a Mansfield wallpaper store.

Cauble was apprehended at Galion yesterday after he wounded Matt Brock, 45, Cleveland fight promoter and referee, in an attempted escape from a posse of Mansfield and Galion police.

Mansfield police, who wounded Cauble in the hip when he attempted to shoot his way to freedom, said the youth admitted his identity today after being questioned. He previously said he was Glenn Funk of Cleveland.

Pistols, Knives Found

Several pistols, a set of knives and burglar tools were said by police to have been found on him.

Brock had just stepped off a train when he was struck in the side by a bullet believed fired by Cauble. His condition is not serious and he was expected to be dismissed from a Galion hospital today.

Shot in Alley

The gunman attempted to dash down an alley when a shot from Policeman R. H. Hildebrandt of Mansfield felled him.

Cauble escaped from Mansfield in a taxicab. He was traced to the New York Central station at Galion where he was cornered by a posse of eight Mansfield and Galion policemen.

After being shot down Cauble was taken to a Mansfield hospital.

SLAYER HAS CHANCE TO ESCAPE PENALTY

White To Reconsider Case of Hamilton Barber; Execution Due Thursday.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 29—His execution at Ohio penitentiary a matter of hours, Charles King today will have another chance to escape the death penalty imposed upon him for the death of his son, almost two years ago.

Governor George White, who only last week declined to intervene after the state supreme court had affirmed King's sentence, will have the Hamilton barber's case laid before him a second time today.

The governor's secretary will lay before him the plea of Burl A. Myers, Celina attorney, who appeared at the executive office to ask commutation of King's sentence to life imprisonment. Myers acted as a friend of the family. King's wife and three other children died with his son from effects of gas flooded into the King house from open jets.

Myers said he had evidence to show Mrs. King had contemplated suicide and threatened the lives of their children also. King claimed he ran away because of domestic trouble, staying away from fright when he learned what had happened.

King is scheduled to be electrocuted tomorrow night. He was convicted only for slaying his son, although he was charged with the death of other members of his family.

EXPOSE "MISSIONARY" AS FORMER CONVICT

Police Record of "Rev." Thurber, Supposed Oriental Disease Victim, Is Uncovered.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., April 29—The "Reverend" Ralph H. Thurber, who sent medical authorities of the country looking up his case when he claimed he expected to die from a malignant oriental disease, today stood revealed by police as an ex-convict with a long police record.

Thurber claimed he had recently returned from 10 years' missionary work in the Straits settlements and Korea, but police said during part of that time he was serving sentences on bad check charges in Ohio and California penitentiaries.

Officials at Lockport, N. Y., said Mrs. Susan Thurber had a son Ralph who was shell shocked while with the Canadian forces overseas during the World war and since then had been subject to hallucinations. Mrs. Thurber was believed on her way here.

Physicians at the City hospital, however, said Thurber may be ill from distomiasis, a disease common in the Far East but rare in this country, as he claims. The disease usually is contracted from eating poorly cooked fish and parasites attack the body.

Thurber admitted, Detective David Cowles said, that under the name of Louis A. Reppell he was in the Ohio penitentiary from August 10, 1927, to March 15, 1930, on a charge of issuing a check to defraud a Cleveland hotel. Bertillon records also showed a Ralph H. Thurber served time in San Quentin, Calif. prison from June 19, 1920, to September 3, 1921, on a similar charge.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 29—Flew into Atlanta from Washington. This is a great old city but it's shot now, with Bobby Jones in Hollywood.

But they are going to open up the hotels and stores as soon as he gets back. They have planted cotton in the golf course so the chiselers on Stone Mountain have nothing to work on till Jones comes back as the model.

(You know they have put Bobby on the horse instead of Robert E. Lee.)

My two friends here, Maj. Cohen and Clark Howell, are keeping their papers going just to print pictures of what he is eating and what he is wearing in Hollywood.

Crowds rushed up to me at the field and said, "Have you seen him? Is he well? When is he coming home? Oh, it's terrible here without him."

PLAN TO CONTINUE FIGHT ON WALKER

New York Committee Declares Charges Will Be Pushed.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 29—The city affairs committee, defeated in its first attempt to force the removal of Mayor Walker, will continue its fight "until every one of its charges has been thoroughly investigated."

The decision was announced in a formal statement after dismissal of the charges by Governor Roosevelt. The committee had accused the mayor of condoning incompetence and encouraging corruption in the city government.

"The governor's failure to act upon the charges of the city affairs committee against Mayor Walker brings to an end the first skirmish in the battle between civic decency and the Tammany machine," the committee's statement said.

The governor said the accusations were so general in character that he was not justified in proceeding further.

The city affairs committee declared the charges against Mayor Walker were no more general than those filed against District Attorney C. T. Crain, whose office is now being investigated by the governor's orders. The statement added that the complaints would be resubmitted to the committee of the legislature which is now inquiring into municipal affairs.

Mayor Walker declined to comment on the dismissal of the charges.

Victory, against the Suburban Power company of Ada, stared when four prespiring workmen of the defendant company staggered into court under the weight of a 35-foot telephone pole introduced into the testimony.

Wilson is asking damages for injuries alleged received when he went to the aid of G. Pearl Johnson, Kenton farmer, and guest in his home, who was electrocuted as he went to the aid of two motorists whose machine left the highway in front of the Wilson home and crashed into the post breaking it off at the ground.

A second man, Fred Fittro, plumber of Mt. Victory, was electrocuted while viewing the scene of the tragedy. Administrators for both the estates of the two men sued the company and were awarded damages.

Workmen labored for more than a half hour in carrying the pole from a truck, up three flights of stairs to the courtroom.

INDIANS WIN EXTRA INNING BATTLE WITH ST. LOUIS BROWNS

Cardinals Hand Pirates 8-2 Beating; Detroit Winning Streak Snapped.

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Whatever the effect of the new sphere on other major league clubs, it has acted as nothing but a tonic for the Cleveland Indians.

In 11 contests the Indians have given one of the greatest demonstrations of collective hitting seen in either circuit in recent years. They literally have blasted their way to the top, averaging slightly better than 12 hits to the game.

Yesterday Roger Peckinpaugh's warriors propelled 16 safe ones off two St. Louis Brown pitchers to win their fifth victory in six starts, 10 to 9. The Browns broke loose on their own account in the ninth, scoring eight runs, but the Indians had the punch to come back and score three in their half to tie it up and then win out in the tenth.

By winning the Indians gained ground on their closest rivals, the Yankees, and Senators, who battled to a 14-inning draw, at Washington, 7 to 7.

Detroit's four-game winning streak was snapped by Pat Caraway of the White Sox, 6 to 5. Bill Cissell provided the winning margin with a homer.

The Brooklyn Robins encountered another southpaw, with the usual result. They collected 11 hits off Clarence Mitchell of the Giants, but he tightened in the pinches to beat them, 3 to 2.

After taking two on the chin, the St. Louis Cardinals came back to stop the Pirates, 8 to 2, Burleigh Grimes registering his third straight win.

The Boston Braves dropped a 9 to 8 decision to the Phillies, the defeat knocking the Braves back into a virtual tie with the Cubs and Cardinals for the National league lead.

The scheduled game between Cincinnati and Chicago at Cincinnati was postponed for the funeral of Garry Herrmann, former president of the Reds. Cold weather again blocked the Athletics and Red Sox at Boston.

OHIO RELAY RECORDS FACE HEAVY ATTACK

Several Present Marks Likely To Be Shattered in Annual Assault.

BY JAMES L. BENICK.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

COLUMBUS, O., April 29—While many Ohio relay records are expected to fall Friday and Saturday when more than 2,000 athletes gather here for the eighth annual running of this carnival, four seem to be in more danger of being lowered than any of the remaining 32 scheduled.

The one mile relay, shot put, broad jump and 120-yard high hurdles seem destined to fall, if times made at various relays meets so far this season can be taken as a criterion.

Ohio State University holds the present Ohio relays records for this event, 3 minutes, 21.5 seconds. However, this mark was shattered last Saturday at the Penn carnival when the Pennsylvania quartet traveled the distance in 3 minutes and 18 seconds.

Big Jim Bausch of Kansas holds the Ohio shot put mark of 47 feet, 8¾ inches. This record was twice broken last Saturday, once by Rhea of Nebraska, who hurled the shot 50 feet, 7-2 inches at the Drake relays and by Munn of Minnesota, who took the honor at Penn with a heave 48 feet, 7⅝ inches.

In 1927 Portmess of Chicago established an Ohio record of 23 feet 7¾ inches in the broad jump and this mark has withstood all attacks. At Drake Saturday Gordon of Iowa leaped 23 feet 10½ inches, while at Penn Boyle of Pennsylvania jumped 23 feet, 11 inches

The mark is the 120-yard high hurdles, set by Lee Sentman of Illinois in 1930, when he made the distance in :14.8, seems sure of being lowered. Jack Keller of Ohio State went the route Friday at Penn in :14.7 and Hager of Iowa made the same time at Drake. Recently in a meet with Pittsburgh Keller made :14.5 one tenth of a second slower than the world's record of :14.4.

A comparison of time and distance records of the Ohio relays with those made last week at Drake and Penn show that many may withstand all attacks, although the Penn and Drake carnivals were run off under adverse weather conditions.

TITLE STATUS DENIED JACK SHARKEY BOUT

New York Commission Refuses Championship Recognition of Carnera Fight.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 29—Apparently warned by last year's horrible example—the fiasco that started out to be a heavyweight championship fight between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey, the New York state athletic commission has decided to wait and see before awarding championship recognition to the meeting of Sharkey and Primo Carnera at Ebbets Field, June 10.

Unless the weather or the threatened suit of the Madison Square Garden corporation causes trouble, the 15 round bout is all set for June 10. The commission yesterday granted its permission for that. But Chairman James A. Farley explained, no quest for title recognition had been received. He indicated that part of the question might be taken up at a later date.

The threatened legal entanglements now look like the most serious cloud on the horizon of Promoter James J. Johnston. The Garden through a subsidiary holds a contract with Carnera for him to meet the winner of the Schmeling-Young Stribling fight in Cleveland July 3 and claims that a clause bars the giant Italian from other fights. And the Garden authorities say they intend to enforce this agreement, taking legal measures if necessary.

CAPTAINS TO MEET

The captains of the city school teams entered in the Y-Scholastic recreation ball league are asked to meet with F. O. Rudolph in the Y. M. C. A. Friday at 4 p. m. Final details relative to the opening of the league next week will be worked out at this time.

CELLAR POST YAWNS FOR LUTHERAN CLUB IN NO. 1 S. S. LEAGUE

Team Looks Like Best Bet To Complete 1931 in Lowest Place.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

Each year the team that finishes in last place in the No. 1 Sunday school recreation ball league is relegated to a post in the No. 2 circuit the following season. The winner of the No. 2 league is honored by being elevated to the faster circuit the following season.

It is easily seen that this rule of Marion recreation ball makes it necessary for some team to be the "goat." Last year the Central Christian No. 1 team was "it." Who is it going to be this season? No one can answer this question with absolute certainty but right now it looks like the Lutherans are about ready to hit the skids into a cellar berth of the upper league and thence into the slower division. The Lutherans came into No. 1 division a couple of years ago by virtue of having won the championship in the lower league. The team barely escaped being shunted back into the No. 2 circuit last season.

Cellar Post Yawns

On the basis of the team's showing last season the Lutherans have only a slight chance to escape a cellar berth this year. Only five victories were turned in last season against No. 1 league competition and the league is certain to be faster this year. The Lutherans have added little if any strength for the coming campaign so even fewer victories are in sight now.

There is a possibility the team will surprise the fans and battle its way to a position higher than eighth but it is not likely. Right now it is the outstanding candidate for the "cellar championship."

The lineup of the Lutherans is likely to be altered somewhat this season. A majority of the players of last year will however be at their old positions. Dutch Thibaut will be behind the bat with one of the four Frayer brothers on the squad as his understudy.

Two New Pitchers

Dee Johnson and Bob Atkinson are slated to do most of the hurling although it is expected that Harold Kochensperger, the manager, will be on the mound at least part of the time.

Walt Snyder at first, Don Atkinson or Austin at second, Jap Siefert at third and Larry Larsen at short comprise the probable starting infield. Ed Thibaut, Whitey Gast and Bob Atkinson will be the regular outfielders. Bob Atkinson is the same individual scheduled to see duty on the mound.

On the roster of the team are quite a number of men who may be used to fill in any vacancies that may occur and still not weaken the team much below its usual strength.

PRACTICE GAMES BILLED

The First Reform Sunday school recreation ball team will meet the Lee Street Presbyterians today at 6 p. m. on the Shovel diamond in a practice game. Reform will play the Epworth Seniors in another practice encounter Friday at 6 p. m. at Garfield park.

SLUMP HITS STOCK LIST

Drastic Drop in Earnings of U. S. Steel Brings Market Decline.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 29—Shrinkage of equity share values quickened today as the stock market took its cue from the unexpectedly drastic slump in the earnings of the United States Steel Corporation as shown in its quarterly statement.

Many issues dropped two to 10 points, with U. S. Steel common recording one of the widest drops since the crash in 1929. Liquidation spread to the electric power issues after midday, although that group had been holding up relatively better than other divisions. With some exceptions, the rails appeared to be fairly well sold out.

Selling was in rather large volume for a time, but after sharp declines at the opening, the list sank slowly. U. S. Steel common tumbled eight points, getting under 117, and within a few points of its 1927 low. Westinghouse Electric dropped six to the lowest in seven years, and Bethlehem Steel more than three to the lowest in five years. Other issues losing three to more than four points included American Can, American Telephone, North American, American Water Works, New York Central, Byers and Allied Chemical.

Statistics More Cheerful

The mid-week business statistics were more cheerful than recently. The weekly steel trade reviews indicated that the slackening in output of the last five weeks had been at least partially checked. While some observers estimated operations at a slightly lower level, "Steel" calculated that there had been a slight upturn. Structural steel orders continue a sustaining factor, and there is considerable inquiry for pipe, althought actual placing of orders is generally being deferred. With the industry operating a little less than 50 per cent of capacity, however, it is evident that it can do little better than break even. The industry was between 75 and 80 per cent a year ago.

Although U. S. Steel's declaration of its regular dividend of $1.75 for a quarter, which showed profit of only five cents a share, was interpreted in some quarters as indicating that the management does not look for a protracted period of adversity, the shrinkage in earnings was so drastic as to cause doubts over maintenance of the dividend at the current rate through the rest of the year.

The most encouraging exhibit in the weekly statistics was the sharp rise of 22,068 cars in the loadings of revenue freight in the week ended April 18.

GRAIN PRICES MOVE HIGHER

Report of German Import Duty Cut Aids Tone of Chicago Pit.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 29—Helped by reports of an almost certain large reduction of Germany's wheat import duty, grain prices showed an early upward trend today. Continued dry weather in the North American spring wheat belt was also a strengthening factor. Opening at ⅛ cent off to ⅛ up, wheat afterward showed a general advance. Corn started at ⅛ decline to ⅜ gain and subsequently rose all around.

Despite selling pressure that resulted from stock market weakness, wheat traders gave much more attention for the moment to predictions that German import duties on wheat would be slashed 58 cents a bushel within a week. It was asserted that the German government believed Germany could absorb 20,000,000 bushels of foreign wheat without endangering the nation's agriculture. Advices were also at hand that 30,000,000 bushels of wheat had been sold to go out of Montreal in the next four weeks.

Speculative buyers expressed belief that wheat prices had been scraping bottom. Spring seeding was reported backward in most countries.

Corn and oats were bullishly affected by smallness of Chicago arrivals of corn, 79 cars against 111 a week ago and 177 at this time last year.

Provisions responded to downturns in hog values.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, April 30

A PARTICULARLY eventful and active day may be looked for, according to the testimony of a most interesting chain of planetary aspects. There is prospect of sudden upheaval and change of work and environment which may lead to places of prominence rather than to safe avenues of profit. Promotion is probable with financial emoluments deferred. Be careful with these new ventures, do not lend money and be conservative in speculation. Personal letters may bring benefits.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of unforeseen change, with important journeys, probably new associations, which may bring advancement, but not financial increase or safety. Personal correspondence has advantages. A child born on this day may be conspicuously talented, original, adventurous and skillful and may reach high place and travel far. It may take long chances in finances to its detriment.

Marion County Doubles Training Camp Quota

Twenty-Three Boys Accepted for Enrollment in Two Camps; Thirteen from Prospect, Nine from Marion and One from Waldo.

Twenty-three Marion county young men will attend Citizens' Military Training camps this summer, according to an announcement made today by Captain E. H. Shade, county chairman in charge of enrollments. Enrollment in the camps closed on April 20 and all is now in readiness for the opening of Camp Fort Benjamin Harrison on June 20 and Camp Knox on July 2.

In addition to the 23 who have been accepted, Captain Shade has a list of eight alternates who will be used to complete the quota of any county which might be short or to take the place of any of the accepted men who for any reason will be unable to attend camp.

Commends Shade

A special citation has been given Captain Shade by Colonel Walt C. Johnson, chief of staff, for the promptness with which Marion county's quota was filled, the 12 men alloted the county having been procured before the formal opening of the campaign early in March.

In order that each county in the state might be represented at one of the camps, the campaign was held open for a month and a half after the Corps area quota was filled. At the present time there are 9,000 applications on file while the number of candidates from this area to be trained is but 4,000.

Of the 23 who will go from this county, 13 are from Prospect, nine from Marion and one from Waldo. Those from Marion are William I Glosser of 477 Summit street, and John F. Williams of 386 Commercial street, who will go to Camp Knox in Kentucky and Daniel E. Hall of 303 Windsor street, Ivan T. O'Brien of 265 Edwards street, Harvey D Latimore of 500 Blaine avenue, Frederick H Lawson of 1075 East Center street, Frank C. Putmen of 397 Commercial street, Joe D Rathell of 400 Blaine avenue, Clyde H. Smith of 641 Cherry street.

Prospect Enrollment

Prospect men who will go to camp are Cyrus T Chapman, Paul P Farrington Herschel V. Penry, Harvey M Shappard, Rothbe H. Bennett, David A Farrington, James B Middlemiss, Paul D. Penry, Harold W Schweinfurth, Ray A. Shappard Gerald I. Wheeler, Mathew Murray and James R. Jordan. All candidates with the exception of Glosser and Williams will go to Camp Fort Benjamin Harrison

The alternates are George E. Bailey of R F D No 5, Marion, George R. Eyre of 562 Thompson street, Ward Garrison of 370 Park street, John T. Ledwig of 203 North Seffner street, William W. McFarland of 389 Thompson street, Jack F. McIntire of 1062 Wilson avenue and Donald A Spicer of Marion and Gaylord M Johnson of Prospect.

MAN MAKES LICENSE TAGS; PAYS $32.20

Tells Court Plates Were Stolen from Car; Mistake Results in Fine.

It cost J M. Christopher of Chicago, $32.20 in municipal court this morning to learn that a license plate was not always a license plate.

Christopher appeared on the streets yesterday driving an automobile with license plates of wood on which has been drawn the numbers D7143G. Taken to police headquarters Christopher said he had purchased plates in Upper Sandusky and while in Chicago a short time ago his car had been stolen and when the machine was recovered the plates had been removed. He conceived the idea of making a new set, he said.

Due to the fact, however, that the figure six which had appeared on the original plates had been changed to the letter G, on the wooden plates, a charge of driving with improper plates was placed against him. He pleaded guilty when arraigned in municipal court and was fined $25 and costs by Judge Martin

BOY, 8, RUNS INTO MOVING CAR, HURT

Loren Tibbals Bruised and Cut in Mishap on North Main Street.

Loren Tibbals, eight, son of Mr. and Mrs A. V. Tibbals of 136 North Main street, narrowly escaped serious injury early last night when he ran into a moving automobile driven on North Main street by J. F. Swick of 898 Bellefontaine avenue.

According to Patrolman Wayland, who took the boy to the City hospital, he was playing on the sidewalk in front of the Bradley drug store when he suddenly darted into the street between two parked automobiles colliding with the moving car.

Swick, who was driving slowly, stopped at once and took the injured boy, his mother and the patrolman to the City hospital and later to the office of a physician where it was found the boy's injuries consisted of bruises and cuts. He was taken to his home.

Another Effort at Identification Fails; "Jack" Remains Mystery Man

"Jack," the mystery man at the Marion county home may be the William Huff described by Mrs. O. H Gilbert of Davenport, Ia., when she saw the mystery man's photograph in newspapers recently, but it is up to some one to prove they are the same person.

Interviewed at the Marion county home yesterday, Jack said the name of Huff did not sound familiar to him. Nor does he ever remember working at the Bettendorf shops in Davenport as a painter, although he wields a brush with no mean ability

Ages Differ

One of the most striking dissimilarities between "Jack" and the description of the man given by Mrs Gilbert is the "apparent difference in ages "Jack" appears to be well past the 70 mark, while the man whom Mrs. Gilbert suspected "Jack" to be would be only 64 by this time.

"Jack" listened with apparent interest when told that someone believed him to be identified, but shook his head and assumed a slightly discouraged look when the name of Huff was mentioned For more than two years "Jack" has been unable to remember who he was or where he lived since he was struck over the head and thrown from an automobile near Des Moines, Ia. He came through Indiana to Ohio where he eventually landed at the county home

His ability to do odd bits of carpentry and to do beautiful work with paints has made him a welcome inmate of the home. He has received frequent visitors at the home who were on the search for a missing father, brother or other relative, and who had journeyed to the institution in the hope that "Jack" might be the missing kin, after reading about the mystery man in newspapers.

Sees Pictures

Mrs. Gilbert saw a photograph of Jack in a recent issue of the Davenport Democrat, and immediately believed she saw some similarity between the mystery man and a former neighbor.

She said of him the following. "The picture to me looks like Mr Huff who was our neighbor in 1919 when he lived near Sixth street and what is now Carey avenue

"He was a painter employed at the Bettendorf shops. He was a quiet, reserved man who left Davenport with his wife to go to the Oklahoma oil fields. They had a daughter, Mildred, who married a soldier stationed at Rock Island arsenal."

Mrs. Gilbert said Huff was 52 in 1919. She is forwarding to Marion county a photograph of Mrs Huff in the hope that the mystery man may be able to identify the woman as his wife.

SUMMARY OF ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1930

THE 84TH ANNUAL REPORT of The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, covering operations for the year 1930, will be formally presented to the stockholders at the annual meeting on April 14th, 1931. The report shows that although the Company's total operating revenues in 1930 declined over $112,000,000, it earned a net income sufficient not only to pay 8% dividends and all other charges, but also to provide a surplus of nearly $11,500,000

Net income amounting to $68,809,818 was equivalent to 10.55% upon the outstanding capital stock at the close of the year, as compared with 17.64% upon the amount outstanding at the close of 1929. Net income per share (par $50) was $5.28 compared with $8.82 in 1929

The financial results achieved last year, notwithstanding marked reductions in business and revenues, reflect not only the Company's large capital expenditures for improvements in service and efficiencies and economies in operation, but also the increasingly cordial and effective cooperation which exists between the management and employes.

You can pay a little less, or far more . . but Pontiac is the happy medium in car quality and cost*

If you are like a lot of other motorists, what you really want is a car you can be proud of, at a reasonable cost. That describes the new Pontiac.

Driving this car, you will feel a smooth, even power which speaks volumes for its new 60-h.p. engine. One reason for that smoothness is the engine's large size, which means it never has to "labor."

Seeking reasons for Pontiac's unusual riding ease, you will learn that the chassis is rubber-cushioned at 43 points.

On hot days or cold days or rainy days you will appreciate the comfort of the Pontiac insulated body.

Stopping in traffic or riding down a steep hill, a light touch will prove that Pontiac has brakes you can depend on.

And if you care about other people's approval, you'll notice plenty of it as you drive your Pontiac! And you'll hear that approval as guests note the genuine mohair or whipcord upholstery, the rich appointments, the fine finish of every detail

Be sure to see the new Pontiac—drive it—and we know you will find it the kind of car you like at the price you want to pay.

"Puckering" of Brain Named as Insanity Cause

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.
Associated Press Science Editor.

WASHINGTON, April 29—Discovery that puckering of proteins in brain cells causes insanity—may even be the long-sought seat of this ages-old mystery—was reported to the National Academy of Sciences today.

The same pucker explains sleep in a new way, alcoholic insanity and why aviators have "ceilings" above which they lose control. It gives insanity itself a novel and less dreadful aspect.

Dr. Wilder D. Bancroft, professor of physical chemistry, and Dr. G. H. Richter made the discovery at Cornell university.

The normal white of an egg represents fairly well an uncoagulated protein, though much softer than the cells of a sane, healthy brain. Boil the egg and the clear substance whitens and thickens—its proteins pucker. Coagulation is the scientific name; insanity one physical result.

Less pucker than normal likewise is bad. Dilute the egg white until it is watery and the pucker is reduced Again insanity is a result.

"Alcohol is credited with nearly 10 per cent of the mental disorders that lead to hospital incarceration," said Dr. Bancroft. "It is a coagulation agent for the brain colloids among others In its action on the brain it first stimulates and then depresses, the depression passing into sleep, anesthesia or death, depending on the amount taken."

We mean just that. You can make every dollar you invest in a WESTINGHOUSE Refrigerator come back to you, with a money-profit added.

In other words, you are more than paying for a WESTINGHOUSE right now—by money losses that you can prevent.

WESTINGHOUSE is prepared to prove that statement to any woman not owning a mechanical refrigerator.

The smallest family can save $50 per year; some can save $150 and even more, with a "WESTINGHOUSE." Any WESTINGHOUSE dealer will prove this statement.

And 2 years to pay

The purchase prices of WESTINGHOUSE Refrigerators are not only low, but the terms are most liberal. A small first payment and then two whole years to pay the balance if you desire.

Investigate now!

See the WESTINGHOUSE dealer near you. Or, fill out and mail the coupon. You will receive free of charge the complete refrigerator story.

Tune in the WESTINGHOUSE Program every week over KDKA, KYW, WBZ, and other stations associated with the National Broadcasting Co.

6,000 Persons Hear Checker Club Story of Community Fund

30 Speakers Make 75 Talks as Drive Nears

Tell Marion Residents of Work of Charity Organization as Preliminary to Annual Campaign for Funds for Coming Year's Operating Expense.

More than 6,000 persons have heard 30 Checker club speakers tell of the activities of the Community Fund in the 75 meetings of Marion clubs and organizations the speakers have attended during the last month, as a preliminary to the annual fund campaign, heads of the Checker club said today.

Meetings this week will be among the last to be visited by the club speakers, as the series of speeches was arranged only for the month of April. Several speaking engagements run into May, however.

Speak in Churches

Ten Marion churches last Sunday had speakers provided by the Checker club. J. C. Scheifler spoke at the Salem Evangelical, C. Z. Zachman at the United Brethren, F. O. Rudolph at the Wesley M. E., A. S. Brooks at the First Reformed and the Epworth M. E., Mrs. H. K. Mouser at the Forest Lawn Presbyterian, R. F. Fletcher at the Central Christian and Oakland Evangelical, E. N. Hale at the Trinity Baptist and Calvary Evangelical. All other churches had previously been furnished a club speaker.

Gilmore Hiett, also a club speaker, addressed the Odd Fellows lodge Monday night. R. F. Fletcher addressed the Rotary club yesterday at noon, and Mrs. Frank Sifritt spoke at a meeting of the Women's Century club with Mrs. L. K. Warner on East Church street. Alwyn Crane addressed the Mark Street community club at the school building and Mrs. Walter Dorsey spoke to the Three Arts club in a meeting at the home of Mrs. Rex Robinson on Summit street.

Speeches today include a talk at a meeting of the Round Table club by Mrs. Walter Dorsey and regular meeting of the Searchlight club at the home of Mrs. J. H. Jackson on West Church street with Mrs. Frank Annen speaking.

Thursday Rev. L. A. Wood will address the Kiwanis club.

A summary of detailed information presented their audiences by Checker club speakers follows:

The nutrition fund drew $2,002.50 from the fund to teach nutrition and health to all Marion school children in the first six grades. Milk was given 179 undernourished children.

Red Cross Share

The Red Cross chapter received $8,292.68. Since December the chapter has been principally concerned with war veterans, all relief work having been taken over by another fund agency. The chapter has rendered service to 580 veterans or their families, has maintained first aid classes for local factory workers, and last summer conducted first aid classes at Crystal lake teaching swimming and water safety.

Another feature of the Red Cross program is the nursing service in which two chapter nurses and a city nurse care for families unable to pay full price or any fee for nursing service. Six hundred and forty cases were handled by the nurses last year in 6,144 home visits, in addition to an extensive program of school health work carried on through the city and county health office. The chapter also maintains a loan closet of supplies for the sick.

Scouting activities, including the financing of 11 troops in Marion with total enrollment of 225, cost the fund $7,114.66 last year. Included in this amount are finances for the scout camp, John A. Owens, where 133 scouts were given summer outings last year.

Hundreds of persons otherwise unable to afford the services were given hospitalization last year through the clinic and the charity ward maintained at City hospital by fund agencies. With an allowance of $801 the clinic cared for eight to 40 cases each Monday, Wednesday and Friday when Marion doctors and dentists contributed their services at the hospital to cure ailments of the needy. The charity ward spent $2,225 caring for serious cases requiring up to 10 weeks of hospitalization. Most of these cases required operations or treatments to enable the patient to return to work.

Family Welfare Society

The Family Welfare society was organized in December to meet an emergency situation when 500 families in the city relied on charity for sustenance. With the services of an experienced charity worker, the society took over all welfare work of the Fund. It is now caring for 231 families and spending $2,000 each month for groceries.

The society also has charge of the distribution of approximately $50,000 worth of clothing given by Marionites. Up to April 1, records show 2,814 persons appealed to the society for help. In reply, the society gave out 9,225 articles of clothing. Starting with a budget of $7,120 the society to meet necessary work has already spent more than $12,000. The difference has been made up by cutting budgets of other fund agencies.

The Welfare society not only gives relief in time of distress but also aims to help the family help itself.

The Salvation Army, another fund agency, spent $3,212.90 in the last year financing its religious and welfare programs. In 147 open air meetings and 303 indoor meets the army has reached 16,222 persons. Relief work includes provision of lodging and breakfasts for 1,679 transients.

The St. Vincent De Paul's society of the St. Mary's Catholic church has worked out a plan of charity work on a non-sectarian basis and takes care of extreme cases of need in every part of the city. It has provided for 38 adults and 55 children, and furnished 137 families with baskets at Christmas and Thanksgiving.

Largest in Group

The Y. M. C. A. is the largest organization in the fund, and includes 127 organizations grouped under the one head. It's total membership is 2,917, of whom only 902 contribute to the support of the institution in any way.

Thirty-one clubs are for school boys and girls with 1,252 enrolled. There are nine athletic leagues with 1,177 players, with neither of these groups of clubs contributing any funds. The Y. M. C. A. conducts Camp Uhler at Hepburn, devoting one period of the camp each year to crippled children. Distinctive extension work has been done this year by conducting athletic programs at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. gymnasium for children of the Glenwood and Silver streets schools. For its extensive program the Y. M. C. A. received $20,025 from the fund.

MARION TOWNSHIP TEACHERS ENTERTAIN

Present Program at Progressive Grange Meeting at Hall.

The teachers of the Marion township schools entertained Progressive grange No. 2445 with a program last night at the grange hall. C. B. Rayburn, county superintendent of schools was present and gave a talk on school work.

The program opened with music by a children's orchestra directed by Harold Compton. The pupils of the Smeltzer school gave folk dances, after which Miss Jessie Wells, county primary supervisor, gave an address. Miss Roberts and Miss Dorothy Bird played a piano duet after which Mrs. Catherine Watson gave a talk on character training. Harold Compton gave a reading and Miss Ruth Drollinger, Mrs. Bird and Miss Roberts sang. L. H. McGhee gave a short talk following an address by Herman Baer on "The Rural School." The Shrock school students entertained with songs.

A program to be given May 12 will be presented by the women of the grange. Visitors were present last night from Mt. Olive, United and Grand Prairie granges.

CLASS LUNCHEON

Thirty-Eight Members of Westminster Group at Affair.

Thirty-eight members and guests of the Westminster class of First Presbyterian church were entertained at a 1 o'clock luncheon yesterday afternoon in the church dining room.

The places were laid at tables decorated with spring flowers and pastel colors. Mrs. R. K. Beal and Mrs. Nettie Childres were guests of the class.

A short business session was held, in which plans were made for a penny supper some time in the near future. Contests and a social time were enjoyed. The luncheon and entertainment were in charge of the groups headed by Mrs. C. F. Church and Mrs. C. F. Davison. The class will meet May 26.

POPULAR ARTIST

Anthony Wons, whose daily feature "Tony's Scrap Book, is one of the popular features over the Columbia Broadcasting System network, is setting a record for fan mail. Last year he received 100,000 letters and poems. He is the only radio artist receiving the bulk of his material from his audience.

Old Favorites To Be Featured In New Series

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire.

GLADYS RICE and her supporting cast of eight male choristers will revive old favorites of song and light opera in a series of summer programs, the first of which will be heard Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

Nathaniel Shilkret orchestra will also be heard over the NBC-WEAF air lanes.

* * *

Three important sporting events will be described via radio next month.

They will include the Preakness stakes at Baltimore on May 9, and the Kentucky Derby at Louisville on May 16. Both NBC and CBS networks will carry the broadcasts.

On May 2 the Columbia hookup, with the aid of Ted Husing, will tell about the Blackwell cup races on the Harlem river, New York, between Yale, Columbia and Pennsylvania crews.

* * *

IT'S A FACT—Radio listeners who listen to the Columbia broadcasts of Tony's Scrap Book, are of the opinion that Anthony Wons who reads this program is an old man who spends all his time writing poems. But the truth of it is that Anthony claims to have read a hundred thousand poems, but has written only one. It was four lines and it has never been read on the radio.

* * *

Amos 'N' Andy are coming to Broadway. The two black-face radio stars have signed a theatrical contract to appear in person at the New York Paramount theater, beginning May 1. This however will not effect their series of daily radio broadcasts.

* * *

George Bernard Shaw is to make his second radio talk to America from England at 3:20 p. m. on May 30 over the WABC-Columbia network.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the former president, will speak on the Columbia chain May 6.

Shanghai reports that 1,800 communist outlaws who had been pillaging villages in the Chinese province of Hupeh were surrounded by nationalist troops, captured and beheaded. That manner of punishing outlaws must be conceded to be conclusive.

Philadelphia boasts that its record for major crimes is lower than the average for the largest twenty-five cities of the country, which no doubt will call out jests predicated on its alleged tendency at all times to slumber.

Mussolini is said to have decided to tell France that Italy is opposed to any effort to revise the three-party naval agreement, that it must stand. Il Duce is some politician, all right. That course will not endear him to France, but it's sure to win him the friendly feeling of official United States, Great Britain and Japan.

A former prize fighter has sued a citizen of Pittsburgh for $98,385, which he claims is the balance due him for serving his employer as a physical instructor. That Pittsburgher must have been a regular glutton for instruction to justify so liberal a charge as that.

Snow-plows were being utilized Monday to clear six inches of snow off the highways of New York state's highlands, which possibly may justify us here at home in contending that, by comparison with the weather of other sections of the country, our spring weather is still a close approach to the ideal.

Congressman Wright Patman, of Texas, says he is awaiting the opening of congress to ask for the impeachment of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon on the ground that Mr. Mellon is interested in the "business of trade or commerce" and is part owner of one or more seagoing vessels. It appears to be the idea of some of our legislators that this country should go to an almshouse for its secretaries of the treasury; that a man of any financial ability is utterly unqualified for the place.

The Cunard company has abandoned, at least for the present, its plan to run its liners, Berengaria, Mauretania and Aquitania, out of New York on week-end trips to "nowhere," and run them instead to Bermuda and the Bahamas, claiming that patrons have expressed a desire to land on some foreign soil, even though the stops be of short duration. Then again, going "somewhere" may remove the suspicion that their patrons become such for no other purpose than gratifying a persistent thirst.

Representative Tilson.

Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, has entered the race for speakership of the next house of representatives. He apparently intends to run his race like Governor Roosevelt, of New York, appears to be running his—far enough ahead of time to eliminate close competition at the start.

The prospect for a colorful political spectacle centering about the speakership election is certain. House rules provide that the speaker shall be elected by a majority of the votes cast, and no business can be transacted until the procedure is completed. This resulted in a long delay in 1855-56, when 133 ballots were taken; it finally was decided to break the deadlock by taking a plurality vote, a procedure used in 1849 in a similar situation. A plurality vote may be the method employed when the next house convenes, since the equal division of parties precludes reasonable expectancy of a majority.

The position sought by Representative Tilson, who has been elected Republican floor leader in four congresses, is one of the most important in the legislative branch. Strangely enough, however, few speakers have risen from it to higher political office. James K. Polk, who became president in 1844, and Schuyler Colfax, who became vice president during the presidency of Ulysses S Grant, are the exceptions

Mr. Tilson's claim to consideration for the speakership is a good one—his important position in the Republican party. At the moment, he appears stronger than either of the other two potentially strong candidates, Representative John N. Garner, of Texas, and Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York. It is reported, incidentally, that the candidacy of Mr. Garner, Democratic floor leader, has been weakened by the disinclination of some eastern Democratic representatives to vote for a Democratic organization of the house because a disproportionate number of committee chairmanships would go to southern states if the rule of seniority were applied without exception.

A Proof of Business Courage.

Despite the fact that the operating revenue of the Class I railroads in the United States fell from $6,280,983,425 in 1929 to $5,281,196,875 in 1930, a decline of $999,786,550, the dividends paid were $19,145,404 greater in 1930 than in 1929, holders of common stock having received $419,355,702 last year against $407,857,284 the year before, and the owners of preferred stock drawing $86,090,649 in 1930, whereas the holders of preferred stock received but $78,443,663 in 1929. This somewhat surprising showing is made by statistics just given out for publication by the interstate commerce commission.

Another fact developed by the publication of the commission's figures is that the total capitalization of the Class I roads was $19,301,352,434 at the end of 1930, having been increased $472,228,722 during the year, while long-time debts other than the unmatured funded debt of $10,702,748,701 in 1930 increased the total long-time debt of the roads to $11,051,352,139, an increase of $294,479,975 over 1929. The total maintenance expense was reduced from $2,058,928,303 in 1929 to $1,724,746,222 last year, a decrease of $334,182,081. Maintenance of ways and structures accounted for $705,478,951 of this expense and $1,019,267,271 was chargeable to equipment costs. The total income was $1,217,893,962 in 1930, but, all deductions made, the net income was $527,155,838, a falling-off of $371,862,635 from the net income of 1929.

The significant phases of this showing which we seek to bring out is the immense capitalization involved; the mighty expenditure in one year for maintenance of ways, structures and equipment and the courage the railroad managements displayed and are displaying by going ahead and investing many hundreds of millions of dollars for improvements on their property —structures, rights-of-way, trackage, motive power and rolling stock

The courage of the Class I roads must go unquestioned, when the official figures show that in two years they have expended $3,783,674,575 for maintenance and improvements, and this is doubly true when it is considered that one of the two was the discouraging year of 1930, and that during both of them they were working under governmental regulation and its handicap and forced to meet the unregulation opposition of bus and truck lines, to say nothing of the inroads made into their passenger business by the automobile.

It seems to be the popular practice of our law-makers to harass the railroads; it is the very common practice of certain elements of the public to criticize them, but the splendid fight they are making to hold their place in the sun and carry on in giving high-class passenger and freight service, we are frank to say, has won our adminration and respect, and we wish them well.

The two judges of Reno's divorce mill are said so to have simplified the course of procedure to be followed on and after May 1, at which time the new six-weeks-residence law will go into effect, that they will be able to turn out six divorce decrees each, every hour the mill is in operation. Well, one will have to hand it to them for efficiency.

The Commission's Finding.

The unanimous action of the civil service commission in refusing to approve the request of Mayor Jones that acting Chief of Police Marks be ousted carried very little of the element of surprise to local citizens. It was the very general feeling at the time the mayor made his charges that the acting chief had not been given the cooperation by his superiors which was his due and should have been accorded him. In the view of a large element of our citizenry, he had been selected only to be made the victim of police politics, and if the members of the commission did not come to this view, as the result of their investigation, their finding indicates that, regardless of the original intention, whatever it may have been, the course pursued toward him was just such a one as might well have been followed had he really been made the target for an attempt to frame him as an incompetent.

What kind of a chief, Mr. Marks will make, whether fine or poor, is for the determination of the future. This newspaper is not sufficiently acquainted with him to be able even to hazard what would pass for an intelligent guess. The finding of the civil service commission will not make him an efficient chief, but, backed by its finding, he is in position to demonstrate his fitness for the place. The matter henceforth is up to him, for it will be his own fault hereafter if he does not enforce the cooperation in the department he should have.

The chief concern of this newspaper in the matter has been the welfare of the community, which embraces the welfare of each of its citizens, and this prompted us to call attention to the fact that an act of injustice threatened the acting chief of police. Now that Mr. Marks has been established in his place as chief, we wish him well, and hope that he will make good.

The Chilean minister of justice has warned the newspapers of Chile to stop playing up crime. It might not be a bad plan were papers up here with a tendency that way to stop and consider what the inevitable result of such a course is bound to be

Robert Lynd is quoted as saying that he "never heard of a political crisis in which common sense did not inspire the opposing sides to directly opposite ends" Robert has probably been studying the wet-or-dry situation and taken the words of the opposing armies in justification of the causes they are pursuing Soissons, France, this week celebrated the reopening of its rebuilt cathedral, which was almost obliterated by more than 100 high explosive shells in 1915 and a bombardment of incendiary shells in 1917. The work of restoration has given it the same aspect as when St. Louis kept his watch at its altar on assuming his knighthood and Joan of Arc went to it to pray. A few years more, and what but a decade ago was known as war-torn France will show little physically to indicate that it was the theater of the greatest armed struggle of all history.

Editorial Opinion.

SCREEN ADVERTISING.

The motion picture industry, which is just getting over a serious attack of sex films, appears to be menaced by "concealed advertisements" on the screen. At least this is the view of several prominent producers, who fear the reaction of movie and talkie patrons to the subtle mixture of entertainment and advertising. As one producer says: "They feel, and rightly, that the theater has received just revenue at the box-office, without seeking additional revenue at their expense." The exhibitors are not responsible for this innovation. The fault lies with those producers who are camouflaging commercial advertising as attractive silent and talking pictures.

Another well-known producer, Carl Laemmle, who has been in the business a quarter of a century and is now president of the Universal Pictures corporation, states the matter in this way:

"When the millions buy newspapers they are not compelled to read advertising if they don't want to. If they don't like radio advertising they can shut it off But movies are different. People pay at the box-office for entertainment. They pay a fixed price. They are entitled to what they pay for. The screen has been kept free of propaganda. It is a sacred trust. It belongs to the people who support it."

What patrons of motion pictures pay for is entertainment unadulterated with advertising. When they do not receive this they feel cheated. A radio program comes to its audience free of charge. A motion picture show has to be paid for. Would it be surprising, then, if movie fans, whose entertainment costs them something, were to become even more resentful of the injection of advertising into it than radio fans already are, whose entertainment costs them nothing?

"Good will" announcements on the air, which merely identified the sponsors of programs, were not objectionable; but they soon led to burdening the air with cheap sales ballyhoo, which has become a nuisance that is creating anything but good will on the part of the public. Are the movies and talkies to go the same way? Are producers preparing to crowd them with "animated advertisements" until they drive from subsequent-run houses and, finally, from Class A houses, a disgusted public? The lure of easy money must be resisted if the screen is to be saved from this form of commercialization.—Detroit Free Press.

DAYLIGHT SAVING OVERDONE.

Dr. C. F. Marvin, chief of the United States weather bureau, predicts that daylight saving will be discarded. The daylight-saving schedules which soon will become effective in some sections of the country are a nuisance, in his opinion, and whatever benefits the plan may have in this country are much less than those from its use in Europe, where it started. Europe has longer periods of daylight in summer, he explains.

In war time, when daylight saving was imposed on the nation as a war measure, it seriously interfered with the work of the weather bureau, according to Dr. Marvin. Observations which had been made at 9 o'clock had to be changed to 8, and in order to keep comparable records over a long period of years, additional observations had to be made at 9. He says daylight saving upsets the chronology of scientific studies and creates difficulties in maintaining railroad schedules.

The American public is being told that it is prolonging the business depression by hoarding money. It is urged to spend normally as a means of restoring normal business conditions. Perhaps daylight saving also has been overdone. There would be no strong objection to any city's saving a moderate amount of daylight It is valuable stuff and worth preserving But actual hoarding of daylight should not be encouraged. If cities which have been miserly in this respect would loosen up and begin to spend some of the daylight they have amassed—a solid month of daylight, at the Louis Globe-Democrat, April 25

May Day, Dedicated to Health.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

May day is the child's day. It is the day for the young, and for all of us to be young

It is fitting that May day should have been chosen by the American Child Health association as the time to remind the nation of the importance of child welfare. This is done every year. It calls upon each and every one of us to guard our youth against the perils of neglect and ill health.

Since last May day there was held the White House conference on child health and protection. Before President Hoover called together this great convention of specialists in child welfare, our country was awake to the needs of the children. However, the Washington discussion served to coordinate the efforts of all concerned. Certainly we are more alive than ever before to our individual and community responsibility.

This year the association, among other activities, is stressing the needs of the pre-school child. This is wise. Let me tell you why.

When the child goes to school he comes in contact with trained teachers as well as older children who have had instruction in personal hygiene. Until this time the youngster has had nothing more than the instruction of its parents.

I say this with no disparagement of the average pair of parents. But it is one thing to see a child every day and almost every hour of the day, and quite another thing to come under the periodical observation of more critical persons than the loving mother and father. The stranger will discern faults that eyes blinded by parental love may quite overlook.

Such contacts, too, are not unlike a consultation of physicians. The new doctor brings new ideas and suggestions, it is hoped. The teacher and the older pupils will call attention to defects so familiar to the home folks that they are never given a thought.

There should be some universally applied system of reaching the child of pre-school age. The surest means of doing this is to impress on every parent the importance of regular visits to the doctor and dentist. It is a mistake to wait till the child is sick or in pain. It is easier and cheaper to keep well than to get well.

Let there be a degree of humility in the home, a willingness to admit that expert advice is useful even to the most confident parent. What was good enough for parents and grandparents is not good enough for your child. You want your little one to have the benefit of everything a progressive world has discovered.

Find fault if your community has not provided a full-time nurse and medical officer. As an American citizen you are entitled to have the guarantees a community hospital bestows.

On May day, two days hence, give thought to the importance of child health. No other contribution to the nation can equal a generation of healthy children. Do your part, as a parent, as a citizen, to have your community live up to its responsibility.

Scientific Curiosity.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

In almost all, if not all, human beings, there is implanted a trait or attribute, which is of the greatest potential value to the race. It is the heaven-born quality of curiosity. The child wants to open the doll and see what its insides are made of. The boy wants to take the clock to pieces and see what it is that makes the wheels go round Mothers are constantly badgered and worried by children who want to put their noses into everything and find what it is all about They should console themselves with the reflection that without this attribute the race would, in all probability, die out in a reasonable length of time. Curiosity is the steam in the engine of progress. It is the motive behind the scientist, the inventor, the explorer, the discoverer.

Some one has said that the best substitute ever found for courage is curiosity It is often only another name for courage. The chemist never knows when an explosion may take place in his laboratory, but he works on just the same The investigation in guncotton, trinitrotoluol, dynamite and other forms of high explosives is perpetually risking his life. Courage and curiosity purposes they are one. The investigator is courageous for just one reason, he wants to know.

The worker in pure science is delighted with his results if they are accurate and contribute to the world's store knowledge. Michelson has already determined the velocity of light with exceeding accuracy. Yet he is making new experiments now, because he has discovered means of arriving at an even more accurate determination. What difference can a few more on a few less miles per second in 186,000 make to anybody? Who can say?

The day might come, conceivably, when the fate of the human race of the universe itself, would depend upon the small quanity, which represents exact knowledge. In reply to a sincere query as to why he spent so much time in determining the velocity of light, Michelson mischievously replied: "Because it is good fun." This is only camouflage. The real reason is that, each time, he has found some element in the technic of measurement which afforded a possibility of error. Michelson would never desist from an important experiment so long as he knew that there was a single sourse of error which he could eliminate. Curiosity drives him on to the discovery of exact truth.—Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

As Ohioans Came to the Front.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Two group pictures of Union generals, in Horace Greeley's "American Conflict," one in the first volume, written in the first year of the Civil war, and the other in the second, written after its close, show strikingly the drift of authority in the field, by which the personnel in high command was completely changed before the Union forces got into the swing which finally brought victory to that side. And incidentally they show that in the change in military authority and responsibility, Ohio men were moving to the top.

The military arm of the government which was placed in Lincoln's hands to suppress the rebellion when he came into office, had to be completely made over. In the center of that group of Union generals appearing in Mr. Greeley's first volume appears General Winfield Scott, the military hero of the country, but who was in his dotage, and wholly incapable of taking the field, if not of even comprehending the stupendous military problems that the country faced.

By his side appears General John C. Fremont, also a hero, but much younger. Then there was John E. Wool, Butler, Anderson, Hooker, Halleck and Burnsides and a lot of lesser men, not one of whom were deemed worthy of being presented among the dozen leading Union generals when the war was ended, and Mr. Greeley issued his second volume. In that second group General Ulysses S. Grant, the Ohio man, is the central figure, and close by his side, where Fremont and Butled had stood before, were Sherman and Sheridan. The only Ohioan appearing in the first group was McDowell, who would not be counted now among the great generals.

The only member of the first group who was dropped in making up the second, about whom any controversy would be likely to arise, is McClellan, but the great majority would say that he was given great opportunities and failed to accomplish what was expected of him and that determines standing as a military leader in the popular opinion.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, April 29.—Those gravely austere faces Fifth Avenue strollers daily lanterned in the melancholy windows of the old Union League club are now seen in the new Park Avenue abode, a few blocks eastward. The recently-finished structure offers a contrasting sprightliness.

It is at the Thirty-Seventh street corner and built of light brick instead of dull red. The old club for some reason symbolized a decrepitude. Members appeared to die without ever having really lived. There was the mustiness of blenched roses. But in the new location there is a sparkling touch and go.

Indeed with the removal many changes have come to the venerable institution. Not since its beginning have women been permitted to cross the threshold. But on Park there are quarters for the ladies. This innovation is said to have created a ruckus at first.

Ladies will not enter through the main entrance. There is a special doorway and a private elevator to which they are whisked to their section. It is a spacious room with dining-room, rest-room, deep-cushioned chairs and sundry creature comforts.

A wife of a member is eligible to drop in at the club at any time, but no husband may visit the ladies' quarters unless he receives a special invitation from his wife. The abandoned club on the avenue is now being torn down to make way for an office building.

The new club has twelve different dining-rooms, which includes a large banquet hall for strictly state occasions. In its past it has entertained almost every visitor of great importance coming to New York. Memorable speeches and pronouncements of international significance have been delivered there.

The Union League is starchy with tradition and I am told that among some of the old-timers there are many who bow aloofly as the result of some political grievance of years ago. Noise is abhorred, and so the main floor is carpeted with cork.

* * *

In one venerable club is a sixty-three-year old member who drops in every late afternoon, goes to his locker, pours a stiff peg of whisky and drinks it neat. Then he sits in his favorite chair and smokes two cigarets. In twenty years he has not used more than this daily allotment of liquor and tobacco. What a man!

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, April 29—Major General Charles Saltzman, chairman of the federal radio commission, admits that had he been a self-effacing sort of chap in his younger days his career might have taken a widely different course.

As the general tells it:

"Back in the 90's, I was a young lieutenant of cavalry—the only officer at a lonely post in the West. One day the inspector general came around on one of his periodic visits. In the mail that awaited him was a notice that any officer with two years' experience and the recommendation of his post commander could enter a competitive examination that would lead to a berth in the army signal corps.

"The general tossed it over to me, saying:

" 'Here's a chance for you, young fellow.'

"Well, I had the experience. I had a pretty good opinion of myself. And I was post commander. So I sat down and wrote my own recommendation, took the test and entered the signal corps.

"My experience there led me to my present post."

Precedents are cherished in the United States supreme court. Even the racks on which are hung the justices' coats and hats are arranged according to seniority.

But perhaps the most antiquated of the practices of the court is the use of goose quill pens. These relics of the past are distributed on the counsel tables every morning the court is in session. And they are objects eagerly sought by souvenir hunters.

In fact, they are so prized as souvenirs that court attaches find it difficult at times to keep an adequate supply on hand. When the court reconvened the other day after an extended recess, a new supply had to be purchased.

MUST OBEY BOY PATROLS

Motorists Disobeying School Traffic Officers Face Fines; Two Before Court.

War has been declared by Municipal Judge William R. Martin and Police Chief Marks on motorists who ignore the boys' traffic patrol of Central Junior High school which guides traffic in front of the school each day when classes are dismissed.

Glenn Runkle of 529 Jefferson street and Donald Plain were each fined $10 and costs by Judge Martin this morning when they pleaded guilty to driving past the traffic boys after being signaled to stop. Both paid and were released. According to the police, one of the drivers narrowly missed striking a school girl Monday.

"The boys are equipped with Sam Browne belts and badges," Judge Martin said this morning, "and there is no reason why they should not be seen by motorists. And any motorist who is brought in in the future for not observing the boys' signals," he added, "will be deprived of his right to drive. We mean to enforce this rule and if necessary will go extreme lengths to do so."

Police Chief Marks was no less emphatic in his stand against violating motorist. "The boys are placed there each day to protect the lives of the pupils, they are doing good work and they are going to be shown the proper respect by motorists or the motorists will be in for an unpleasant experience," he declared.

A charge of reckless driving was placed against Runkle and Plain, who were arrested this morning. Runkle, who first pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Martin, later changed his plea to guilty.

kept a sort of wake over their ashes. Around camp fires they talked of the agonizing scene as the men died in the fire and related incidents of heroism.

Taming of the wild gusher was within a few minutes of accomplishment late yesterday when friction in the lowering of a valve ignited millions of feet of gas gushing from the casing. Fire shot skyward and a terrific explosion followed, igniting the gusher and oil filled slush pits.

Lee Brumley, foreman of the drilling crew for the Lofflin Drilling company of Tulsa Okla., said he did not believe any others lost their lives.

Tells of Escape

Brumley said he escaped death by a freak of the blast which hurled him 20 yards away from the derrick and out of the path of the boiling, flaming oil. Cole was burned about the hands when he seized one of the crew who ran from the scene, his clothing ablaze. Cole tripped the workman and tore the flaming clothing from his body.

The roar of the flames could be heard for more than a mile and the column of smoke was visible in Longview, Tyler, Kilgore and other oil field towns—an ominous warning to seeks after "liquid gold."

Eleven other persons had lost their lives in a series of sudden fires in the east Texas fields within the last three weeks.

FLAG DISPLAY PLAN INDORSED

Legion Post Urges New System for Patriotic Decoration on Holidays.

A plan to brighten up the business section of Marion on patriotic holidays by furnishing merchants with new flags and providing a flag service for merchants at a small annual fee was indorsed by Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162, American Legion, last night.

The plan calls for a person or group within the legion taking charge of the flags displayed by the merchants on patriotic holidays. The person or group will place the flags in the sidewalk sockets on patriotic occasions, then take them in at night, and store them for the merchants.

Purchase of new flags by merchants was urged by the flag committee of the legion, which originated the proposed service. Many flags now displayed by merchants are weatherbeaten and soiled, the committee reported.

Fred Berg is chairman of the flag committee, assisted by Charles Howard, L. K. Warner and J. W. Llewellyn.

POLICEMAN KEISHMAN was perplexed when a lady, 50 years old, said she did not know who she was, or where she lived. He anxiously asked a colleague: "Can you beat it?"

At the hospital the woman's trouble was called "aphasia," which means in Greek "not to speak." The policeman need to have been surprised. The wonderful thing is that so many of us do know who we are, where we live, and where we want to go for the moment. How will it be in a few years, the other side of the grave? Shall we then remember who we are, whom we used to be and whence we came? Those are the important questions. And what wonderful mechanism enables us to keep track of ourselves and identify ourselves each morning?

SEES BRIGHT FUTURE FOR U. S. INDUSTRIES

Secretary Lamont Predicts Repetition of Former Prosperity in Business.

By International News Service

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 29—Industrial history will again repeat itself, and the next 50 years will see further displacement of labor from older pursuits, and the further development of many new products and new services which will afford employment to those displaced, and supply the ever-expanding wants of our people, Secretary of Commerce Robert Lamont declared here today before the nineteenth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Painting unemployment as a challenge to our business leadership, the commerce secretary told his hearers the future prosperity of the United States depended upon its workers.

"Enforced idleness and loss of income endanger the security and welfare of the individual and his family," he declared. "They also mean curtailed operations and shrinking profits to business enterprise, for unemployed labor implies also unemployed capital. The worker is both producer and consumer, and when he finds himself out of a job and without income, business has lost a buyer. So the employer who contracts his own operations and discharges his workers is helping to curtail the market for his own goods and those of other producers, and is thereby further aggravating a situation of which he himself is a victim."

American League Puts Liberal Interpretation on Four-Base Clouts.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 29—A more liberal interpretation on home runs in the American league has enabled the junior circuit to tie the National league in the production of four-base wallops.

Last year the National league produced 892 home runs to 673 for the American league, but to date each league has 41 each.

At the pre-season American league conference, it was decided to count a home run when the ball went out of the park in "fair territory." Previously, a home run was counted only when the ball landed in "fair territory."

RACE COMPLICATED

Progressives Likely To Enter Candidate as Longworth Successor.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 29—Progressive Republicans will sponsor a third candidate in the house speakership election next December regardless of whom party regulars nominate.

This was the prediction today of Representative Schneider, Wisconsin Republican, as the capitol discusses prospects of two of the outstanding candidates, Republican Leader Tilson and Chairman Snell of the rules committee.

Schneider emphasized that Progressives are more interested in a liberal legislative program than in details of house organization.

Progressive support of a third candidate could block indefinitely the election of Democratic Leader Garner of Texas, or his regular Republican opponent, because a majority vote is required to elect a speaker.

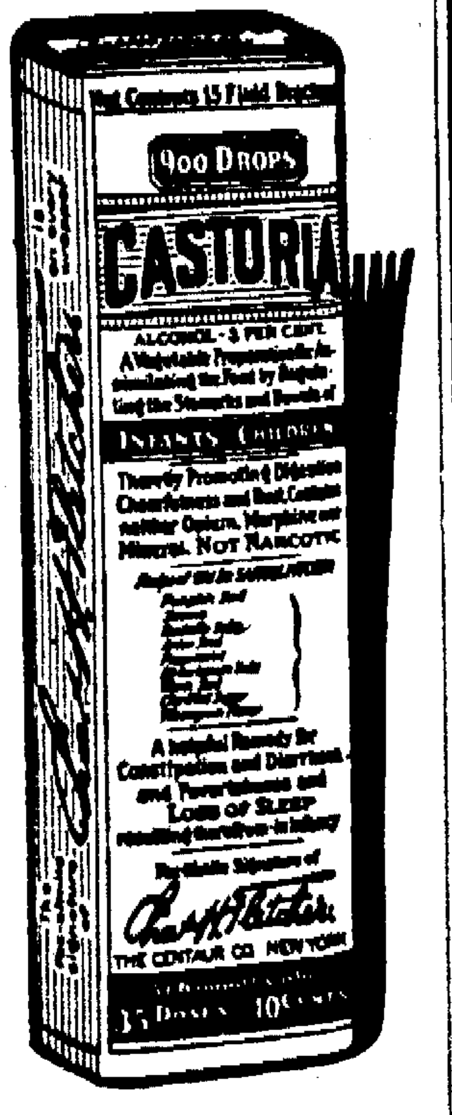
For TEETHING troubles



FUSSY, fretful . . . . of course babies are uncomfortable at teething time! And mothers are worried because of the little upsets which come so suddenly then. But there's one sure way to comfort a restless, teething child. Castoria — made especially for babies and children! It's perfectly harmless, as the formula on the wrapper tells you. It's mild in taste and action. Yet it rights little upsets with a never-failing effectiveness.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to tiny infants—as often as there is need. In cases of colic and similar disturbances, it is invaluable. But it has every-day uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever older children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset, a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

Mad Pursuit

CHAPTER NINE

Man Proposes

MAGDALENNA set down the breakfast tray with a bump. She smiled down at Nora, the golden hoops swinging beside her olive cheeks. She began to explain all the violent happenings of the last few days. Magdalenna groaned and flung her arms up, made the sign of the cross and cradled something in her arms. There was another baby somewhere; but whether it was the baby of her mother, Nora never knew. Then Magdalenna kissed Nora's hand and thumped out on her sturdy peasant feet.

Nora put the tray on the table and drew it up beside the window. She drank the tepid coffee and ate rolls with a lusty young appetite. She loved her funny little room, the old chest of drawers, the mirror in its tarnished gilt frame. Everything seemed charming this morning. What would Nicholas say when he saw her?

—How would he look at her?

When she had drunk the last drop of coffee and eaten the crumbs of her rolls, she drew out a battered diary and began to flutter through the pages. It was a long time since she had made an entry.

Here they were—those old chapters of her wandering life with Julian . . . . here and there, never satisifed, always hoping.

She read over a few of them.

Oct. 7

Saw spires of Oxford. Stole into Dean's garden. Roses and sundial. Julian met Englishman in Inn. Terrible fight. Julian very drunk. Woke me in the night to say he was going to cut fellow's throat. Left Oxford in morning.

Nov. 2

Trossachs. Rain all day. Julian very sweet. Borrowed two pounds. Leaving at once.

Feb. 20.

Villa Augustin. Lime trees. Sunshine. Sea. Julian feels he can work at last. Showed a man his last painting. Did not buy it. Julian drank all night. Going to stab him with palette knife.

She began to write:

April 13

Nicholas Thayer arrived. Most unpleasant. But after you know him—

There was a light tap on her door. She tucked the book under her pillow and turned as her father came into the room. He looked very well pleased with himself, clean shaven, his dark hair brushed in its crest, a flowing black tie under his chin. He straddled a chair and grinned at her.

"Well, Nora my own, how are you? I've good news for you!" he said gayly.

"Have we come into a fortune?"

He pulled out a cigaret from a flat tortoise shell case and lighted it. Nora noticed for the first time that he was nervous. She thought, "He's in a hole. He doesn't know how to tell me."

"You might as well tell me at once, Julian."

"I spent the afternoon yesterday with Helen Nevers. And the truth is—the fact is—" he inhaled a great breath of smoke and flung back his head, "I'm going to marry her."

She could not say a word. She felt a suffocating emotion take possession of her.

"Well, aren't you going to congratulate me?" her father asked airily. "It's the best thing that ever happened to us, Nora. She has enough money, and a place at St. Jean de Luz and she loves to wander about just as I do. Besides she's a charming woman!" her father added when he saw her eyes pitilessly in him.

He went on in an aggrieved tone, "Here on the happiest day of my life you're going to sit like a clod. You're jealous!" he cried in triumph.

"Perhaps I am," Nora admitted.

"This isn't like you. I can't understand you at all!"

She was not glad. She was confused and angry and hurt. She loved her father, but she despised him a little and pitied him more. But suddenly she realized what it meant: She was free. She was ashamed as this feeling surged through her. Her face lightened, she held out her hand like a boy, and he grasped it.

"There, I knew you'd see it as I do. She's always admired me. I saw that the first time I met her. We've even decided about you. Wherever we go you're to come. You'll find she's a charming woman as you know her better." Her father rambled on while Nora sat looking at him. Did he think that she would let Mrs. Nevers support her and go trailing after them all over Europe? Her fierce young pride rose up in arms.

How could Julian think that she would let Mrs. Nevers dispose of her life in this way? Her rebellion flamed into words of protest.

"But I couldn't Julian. You must see that. Not on her money!"

"But it will be my money then!"

He stood up. "I'll tell her that you're delighted, Nora."

"No, tell her that I give my consent."

"Splendid!" he laughed, "splendid!"

She heard her father run down the stairs; the door banged after him. He was going through the blue gate. Her life was changed in the twinkling of an eye.

She was free now. She tried to recapture that first sharp thrill of freedom but that was dulled by fear. For she felt desolate as though a child whom she had loved and watched over had been snatched from her. Henceforth Helen Nevers and not herself would be responsible for him.

What a terrible thing it was to be penniless! She thought of ways and means. But of whom could she borrow money. Nicholas...she stood up and went to the window. She saw a man climbing the hillside; something in his swaggering walk made her think it was Nicholas.

She flew out of the house and followed the narrow path that led up the hill to the chestnut trees She topped the hill and saw his figure clear against the sky; then he dipped down into the valley and she went more slowly in pursuit. When she reached him she saw he was leaning back against one of the chestnut trees, his legs stretched straight before him

He was not at all as she had thought of him The unsparing light showed his face older, more seamed, with a grayish pallor on the cheek bones. He looked up as though she had interrupted him when she came to sit timidly at some distance from him.

"What's the matter?" he asked, frowning.

"Julian is going to marry Mrs. Nevers."

"Yes?"

"He told you?"

"Last night."

He looked at her keenly as he added, "You don't like Mrs. Nevers?"

"No, I hate her!" she said, a sob almost burst from her.

"And you'd do anything to get away?"

"Anything!" she whispered.

He took his pipe out of his pocket and an oil-skin bag of tobacco. He packed it awkwardly with his left hand. She watched him in silence until he motioned that she draw closer to him. She waited, her arms about her knees, staring down the hillside with its pallid olive trees, and off to the brilliant sky.

"I had pleasant news too, this morning," he said in a matter-of-fact voice. "Dr. Madroni tells me I'll never use my hand again. Paralysis." his face contorted with the last word into a grimace.

It was as though all the familiar things she knew were gone. She had stepped off into some lonely place where he and she were shut in by pain."

"If I hadn't asked you to open the shutter—"

"If! If! If!" he said violently. "If I hadn't met your father at the pensione, if I hadn't come to stay with him, if the nail hadn't been there."

"But some doctor can do something."

"Those fools of doctors!"

"You'll find some one to cure you."

"I haven't your belief in the kindness of . . . God," he said bitterly.

A tear ran crookedly down her cheek and slipped into the throat of her dress. She leaned toward him:

"Would you take me with you? Would you take me home?"

Was she as innocent as she seemed or was she a bold little adventuress? Knowing her father he could believe it only too well, but looking at her white face he knew she was not brazen but desperate.

"Do you mean would I marry you?" he asked brutally.

To Be Continued.

Blood will tell, if you take pride in it.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

LIFE isn't anything but milking the cows and going to bed and getting up and milking the cows again. It was warm this morning. When I had milked and chaseted the Lost Bag of Tripe up the alley for putting the water in the feed box and had went in to feed my face, I said I would certainly feel better when I could go swimming again, and my ant said I would probaly smell better too. She said that associating with cows and living in a stable didn't make a person very good to have around. My mother told her no it didn't but someone had to asociate with cows or she wouldn't have any cream for her coffee, and sometimes people got tired of associating with other things besides cows, and my ant asted her if she meant anything personal, and my mother said if the shoe fit she might put it on. That is the way women are. They start talking about cows and then the first thing anyone knows they are talking about shoes or dresses or something.

Feeble and Maggie and Younies were there, and Feeble said, "Did you ladies have any words before the fight started?" and my ant looked like a snapping turkle and said little girls should be seen and not heard. Feeble told her if she was beautiful like her she could be seen and not heard, but not being beautiful like my ant she had to say things so as to get people to look at her, and then my ant's face looked like the sun coming out from behind a cloud, and when we went to go to school she kissed Feeble goodbye, and when we got outside we all said it served Feeble right.

When school let out we started to go to the pasture to see if there were any early snakes out yet, but we were going past a place where a man was plowing and a whole lot of blackbirds were following him along picking up the worms he turned up, so we found a can in the ditch and clumb over and we picked up worms till we had a can full, and when the man turned at the end of the field he said that when he first saw us he thought we were blackbirds, and just then the Lost Bag of Tripe dropped a worm down the back of Feeble's dress and she hollered "Yee-ow-ow!" and jumped into the [illegible] arms and he fell over backw[illegible] over the plow, and the horses [illegible] scairt and went acrost the [illegible] dragging the plow. "Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Advises That the Letter to Jack Bickett Be Forwarded.

LILLIAN glanced apprehensively at the door as I asked her to tell me what I was going to do if I did not "get that letter back," then sat down with a little sigh of relief at seeing it closed.

"I locked it after us," I said as I drew a chair near to hers. Then, on the verge of disclosure, I hesitated.

"I don't believe I was ever so ashamed of anything in my life as I am of that letter," I said.

She flashed her gamin grin at me. "I may be clairvoyant, old dear, as you so often tell me, but really I'm not the Delphic oracle. Suppose you tell me what all the shooting's for."

Swiftly I made a decision upon a point which had been troubling me.

"Im going to tell you the whole story" I said, "because I know that when a suitable opportunity arises Katherine herself will tell you of the letter, which is the primary reason for all my worry."

She stretched herself comfortably in her chair and put her hands behind her head.

"Go ahead. Shoot the works," she said, and I obeyed her. I told her of the venomous letter Ruth Allen had sent to Katherine, asking her to give up her husband, of Katherine's refusal to write to Jack anything concerning it, of my promise not to send the Allen woman's letter back to Jack and of my evasion of that promise by writing to my brother-cousin and telling him of the contents of the letter without giving him either the original letter or a copy of it.

"I inclosed the letter to Jack in one to Miss Halkett," I finished, "asking her to inclose it in one of the company envelopes and mark it 'personal'."

"And you typed your envelope to Jack, I suppose," Lillian said.

"Yes."

"Then I don't see any reason why he shouldn't receive it without any interference by the Allen cobra unless the letter was true, and he's on such terms with her that she would dare to open mail marked personal."

"I don't believe that of Jack. I can't."

"Neither can I," Lillian said quickly, "but," with a little moue, "you never can tell. Men are kittle-cattle, the best of them sometimes, and a wilderness isn't exactly the best background for Victorian standards."

"I know," I said despondently, "nevertheless——"

"Don't mind me," she said quickly. "I'm just exercising my pessimistic inhibitions. I'll take 'em indoors now and store 'em away for another year. I haven't the slightest doubt in the world that your letter will get to Jack without Ruth Allen's interference—that is if you can't flag it, as I infer you want to do from your raucous outcries."

She wrinkled her nose at me and her facial expression as well as her tone told me that she did not sympathize with my attempt to get back the letter.

"Can't you see that I must get it back, that I never ought to have written or sent it?" I said doggedly.

"I see that you believe that premise, therefore you would better get busy."

"But you would not try to get it back if you were in my place."

"I certainly should not," she returned emphatically, "I—don't know—if you had asked for my advice before writing the letter I might not have had the courage to say 'go ahead' after the express prohibition Katherine gave you. But now that it's gone without your meaning it to be mailed, I consider that it's out of your hands, and in your place I should sit down, fold my lily-white hands across my peaceful breast and contemplate the 'lap of the gods' with speculative interest. But of course, you'll do nothing of the kind. You'll move heaven and earth and the other place in order to get it back. Well, here's wishing you luck and praying you won't have it. I suppose you'll try to flag Martha Halkett first thing in the morning."

"Yes, but I can't do it from here I'll have to find some excuse to get away from the house before nine, when she reaches the office. That letter will be on her desk when she gets there."

The Boys Return

"Leave that to me." Lillian's voice was crisply efficient. "If you're dressed and through your breakfast by half-past eight I'll guarantee to have an all-wool and yard-wide errand for you which nobody but you can do. I haven't any idea what it will be now, but I have an inventive mind, you know."

"No one knows it better," I answered, trying to smile at her nonsense, "and I'll rest on your promise."

"All right. And now suppose you get dressed for dinner. You've been tearing around so much you haven't had a second to primp. I'll stand guard while you do it and turn the machine guns on man, woman or child who tries to disturb you."

She straightened herself in her chair and folded her arms with a belligerent air which sent me into a spasm of laughter. Then I hurried through my dressing, for it was near the dinner hour, and I expected every second to hear the telephone ring with the message which Dicky had promised to give me.

It was not the telephone bell, however, but Dicky's auto horn which marked the last fastening of my dinner frock. Katie had been right. He had forgotten to telephone.
